

Golden Rule Awards Interfaith Banquet

There was excitement in the air and the interfaith conversations from the Faith Fair where 17 different faiths were represented, spilled over into the Banquet Hall.

Interfaith calls to prayer started off the program. Interfaith music was woven into the program and a meaningful time was had by the more than 500 attendees.

It was refreshing to have a time of thoughtful learning where misunderstandings and ignorance became a place of understanding and respect.

Bahá'ís from both the Phoenix and Scottsdale Communities attended.

Our Assembly sponsored a booth before the banquet started. Many people asked for information. We were approached by a young man named Sean. He has a very diverse faith background and has started an interfaith high school club called Coexist, at Mesa High School. As a result of this interaction, a Bahá'í is coming to talk to his group.
